The Old Guard Republicans could not beat the New Deal Democrats but in California they beat the Socialists, as Hoover is partially vindicated.

The New Deal won! And what is the New Deal? It is whatever President Roosevelt says it is this week, reserving the right to have it the exact opposite next week.

Less than six weeks till Christmas. As the voters did not elect Santa Claus at the Tuesday election, get the Christmas tree fixed up for a big time.

A thirsty subscriber wants to know how much longer he will have to wait before he can drink rum made from Everglades cane juice, and the inquiry is respectfully referred to the press agent for the distillery promoter.

A St. Louis chemist says rubber in commercial quantities can be extracted from poinsettias. Possibly so, but more rubber can be had from an acre of moonvines than from an acre of poinsettias. Try it yourself—break a vine and test the gumminess of the juice.

And in Florida, Homestead Exemption wins. Which is not surprising, for it held out the prospect that something would be given for nothing, which is an elusive hope, doomed to disappointment. Voters, gazing at a shadow, have missed the substance, which is so certain and done that it is the subject of a fable from the time of the ancient Greek civilization.

The liquor problem has not been solved by the repeal of the 18th amendment or by the vote in Florida Tuesday. It has not been solved because it is a problem of human conduct, and human conduct, and because it is such it will not be solved until the millennium. The practical question is what to do with a bad condition of human nature under present conditions.

The new board of commissioners of the Everglades Drainage District has met and organized. The Miami Herald, impatiently critical, Gropes and vaguely speculates on what the Board will do, and when and why. The Herald, if it has a program, or has recommendations for sections of a program, it might as well present them in proper attitude as a preliminary to further criticism.

More inquiries in the past two weeks for moonshiners' supplies than in a long period previous—that is the report made by a Paducah merchant. Acting on this tip, a reporter made inquiry among other merchants and got the same information. This family journal and church organ is not permitted to state just what the supplies that moonshiners buy.

"Legal liquor is too high priced"—that is the complaint of drinkers make. And the legal liquor is not of good quality—or not enough better than "shine" to warrant the high price, they say. Drinkers were trained in the prohibition era to drink "shine" and now that prohibition has been repealed the drinkers are sticking to the kind of liquor they got used to.

Negroes from Virginia have come into the upper Glades to pick beans and do other farm work on farms. It is usual for negroes to come down from Georgia and the Carolinas but never before have groups of negroes come from a point so distant as Virginia. And still others are to come, so many who have already arrived. A party of Belle Glade negroes went to Maryland last spring and during the summer they picked beans and worked in canning plants. On their return they brought a bunch of Maryland negroes with them.

The Cracker negroes and the white negroes, altogether pleased by this development that increases competition for jobs. A well-known Glade farmer of foreign descent, from that part of Florida known as the Balkans. He is not a member of any church but he is pretty in a religious way. He is asked to be the pastor of a Belle Glade church and will preach, there is one hundred dollars for your church. I had some beans; the beans yielded well and sold at a good price, and you are doing a good work and I think I ought to help. The story as here related may not be accurate in all details, but at least it is true.

AS OTHER EDITORS SEE IT

Plant City Courier: A payroll is a sign, at least, of a payroll. And payrolls are what count these as well as other days.

Punta Gorda Herald: We don't pretend to understand money. We don't know anybody else who. About the only thing that is clear to us, and to most of the folk we know, is that money is something most of us haven't got enough of.

Glory belt shouts the Levee Commercial. This is the last week our mails will be cluttered up with voluminous letters, "releases" and mats on one or the other side of a homestead amendment battle. We can see a lot of grief and little gain ahead and if ours is the single vote that would control the vote we would send it back to the legislature to be revised and made more foolproof so as it is to be returned before full recovery can be obtained.

Recent City Journal: The general business outlook is somewhat improved as the four months slump seems to have ended and indications point to the upward trend. It will continue for five or six months with perhaps a slight sag after the end of the year begins.

This is the time of competent authorities, and is borne out by the occurrences of the past three months. The business is beginning to appreciate the importance of gains in agricultural areas, where business must be re-established before full recovery can be obtained.

Tampa Tribune: Hips, hips and huzzas for Kingford-Smith (not to omit his companion and navigator, Captain T. G. Smith) who, from Honolulu to Oakland in one minute less than 15 hours. The British war crossing the Pacific in three jumps. His only fear was that he'd "land ahead of time," which he did not, too early which was a welcome, and the other was from Brisbane, Australia, where the "Lady Southern Cross" took to air, to the California landing place, is 7365 miles. The American plane, with English pilot and navigator, Kingford-Smith, and Wiley Post's being the others. We are proud of the American plane, proud that the British fleet is making a record for their history-making feat.

Arcaidia Arcadian: Some people still argue that a revolution in this nation is imminent. There are thousands of evidences of it. Whereas we used to hear statesmen pleading to be elected to public office in order that they might guard the public treasury against raiders, now we are listening to politicians seeking office on the promise that they will take more out of the treasury than the other fellow.

In former years men took pride in the payment of an obligation, and the harder he had to work to pay it, the more he took pride in the accomplishment, but now we have "revoluted" to the extent that men take pride in inability to evade payment of debts or other obligations.

One of the "tax-payers" claimed that he had a case against the non-tax-payer, but now the fellow who pays his taxes is regarded as a common garden variety of chump, while the one who successfully dodges payment is a hero. And he is permitted to save money on his delinquency.

Once the people looked upon the tax-payer as something they must support, and now they look to the government to support them. A revolution COMING, brother? Bless your heart, it is already HERE.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Every morning at 20 minutes to 8, a scapline scapes away from the Gulf of Mexico Bay on Long Island, and quickly rises from the water and heads for its terminal at the tip of Manhattan, where it lands a few minutes later. It is a suburban airliner bearing a plane load of commuters to the city's work at the office. This is the industrial mode of transportation, heretofore associated with long-distance travel, being fitted to short-range travel. The Palmist was better poetic when he lifted up his eyes on an ancient hillside to speak of taking "the wings of the morning." These modern suburbanites of Oyster Bay are not only doing it, but they are also doing some practical things as time for two more pieces of toast and that extra cup of coffee, say nothing about another half-hour of the comforting arms of good old Morpheus.

A. & P. PRESIDENT IN LABOR ROW

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Kay.

A bitter controversy between the labor and the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. resulted when John A. Hartford, assistant president of the vast grocery chain, announced that because of labor difficulties the A. & P. would no longer do business in Cleveland. Three hundred Cleveland stores and 2200 workers were affected by the decision.

A Hitter controversy between the labor and the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. resulted when John A. Hartford, assistant president of the vast grocery chain, announced that because of labor difficulties the A. & P. would no longer do business in Cleveland. Three hundred Cleveland stores and 2200 workers were affected by the decision.

Smugglers of family fire-arms, at corner drug stores, in exclusive clubs, over bridge tables, in great metropolitan centers and remote village folks are talking about "Florida."

Delegates who attended the great American Legion convention at Miami last month from every state in the Union have returned with their heads full of the latest news about their marvelous trip and recount their experiences.

In many school rooms, kiddies are clustered about a branch of oranges or grapefruit, a coconut, or a stalk of sugar cane or cotton, and somebody's daddy brought back from "Florida."

Picture postcards that portray everything from yawning gators to the swanky Miami Biltmore have found their way into every city and town, all from "Florida." Hundreds of thousands of souvenir booklets and mail-away editions of the "Florida" have been distributed throughout the nation telling of the wonders and beauties of Florida and at the same time describing the convention.

All this splendid publicity campaign, which has been appearing in the newspapers and the season's coal supply demands the attention of millions who reside in a less kindly climate. Bringing the American Legion convention to Florida at this season of the year was a wonderful break for Florida. Aside from the money the delegates and visitors actually spent for food, shelter, entertainment, gas, tires and what not, which was plenty, the greatest benefit was that it came.

Among the thousands of Legionaires who visited Florida this year will be many who will return to be permanent residents. They will build homes here, establish businesses and take their places in the civic life of our communities.

They will talk Florida to relatives and friends for many months to come, when we can count on people to visit the state this winter who had made no previous plan to do so.

It was a Miami convention but to reach it, delegates had to travel the length of the state. A large percentage came by automobile. Gasoline consumption for the month of October should show a substantial increase with resulting increased revenue to every section of the state. Likewise the state revenue from the beverage tax should be considerably increased.

It is difficult to estimate how much the American Legion convention will ultimately mean to the state. In any event it should prove a remarkably profitable investment. While it is still fresh in our minds, this would be a good time to rise and give three rousing cheers for a chap named Dave Rhotz, whose winning smile, genuine enthusiasm for Florida and con-

Next Sunday, Nov. 11th, we will begin our evening preaching service at eight o'clock. Good music, singing of the old favorite hymns, fellowship and testimony will be part of the service. It is hoped by the pastor that this service may combine the best features of a prayer meeting and preaching service. We are all the community Church with a responsibility to the people regardless of creed, denomination or sect: it is an endeavor to have a worship service where all present may be edified and inspired; therefore if you are not worshipping elsewhere come and worship with us.

The Ladies' Aid Society will hold their regular devotional and business meeting next Wednesday afternoon at the church at three o'clock. Mrs. W. W. Miller and Mrs. Shelly Thompson in charge of the program.

We are trying to beautify the church grounds and would be glad to have several hands of help brought in to fill up the low places and also gifts of palms and shrubbery. This for this work has been done by the pastor and J. P. Brown, but we do not wish to be selfish in this good work. The work of beauty should be shared in by all who have a desire to make the city more beautiful.
